Written By Jaime-Lynn Dyck

Westman Environmental Services (WES) specializes in Hazardous Building Material Assessments, Asbestos Assessments/ Inventory's and indoor air quality. In addition, they also conduct inspections and air monitoring following mould remediations and asbestos abatements.

Owned and operated by Travis Dominey, they service Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Travis's 9 years of experience in the industry, led him to open Westman Environmental Services last Spring.

They work in residential, commercial, government, and with school divisions. Residential customers call when they have inquiries regarding indoor air quality and mould issues. A customer may complain of breathing and respiratory issues and will rely on them to test the home for mould and overall air quality. This can be a common test run in large offices and buildings as well. If issues are found, Travis will give recommendations on how to remedy the issue. Once the work is complete, Travis will come back to test the air quality again for peace of mind that an improvement has been made.

Travis works closely with contractors to give them reports detailing his findings. When a home is to be demolished or renovated, they will have Travis in to do an Asbestos Assessment. They test materials in the home such as drywall joint compound, pipe insulation, flooring, plaster, and vermiculite insulation, to name a few. From there, the contractor or homeowner will connect with a company that specializes in the removal of hazardous materials.

If you have concerns within your home or office, reach out to Westman Environmental Services to see if they can help.
